NEW DISCOVERIES & ITEMS OF INTEREST

by Andrew Dolphin

TWO EXCEPTIONAL NEW MISSING COLOUR ERRORS:

CHRISTMAS

Several years of the early Harrison and Sons Ltd printed Christmas issues are known with missing colour errors, from red colour omitted on the 1960 Christmas, to again on the 1966 Christmas.

1964 Christmas was a 2½d stamp featuring L C Mitchell's painting of the first Christian Service held in New Zealand, Christmas Day 1814, conducted by Rev. Samuel Marsden.

This issue has now been discovered with the missing red colour. This produces a totally washed out scene, now predominantly in shades of yellow.

This comes with a RPSNZ Certificate (2019) stating: "genuine... missing red colour... unlisted variety".

The error will be listed as SC5a(y), and is offered as lot 352(g) in this Newsletter.

LIFE INSURANCE

The 1969 Pictorial Life Insurance designs were printed by Bradbury Wilkinson & Co Ltd, first on ordinary Vertical Mesh paper with glossy gum-arabic and bright UV fluorescence, and later on chalky Horizontal Mesh paper with dull PVA gum and little UV fluorescence.

The 3c Baring Head lighthouse on this latter paper is known with yellow-orange background colour omitted.

The original printing has now been discovered with the background ochre-yellow omitted. The whole stamps is printed only in the deep brown colour.

Again this has a RPSNZ Certificate (2019) stating: "genuine... missing ochre-yellow... unlisted variety". The error is now CP Cat. listed as X29a(z), and is offered as lot 352(h) in this Newsletter.

"A DANGEROUS FORGERY"

New Zealand's 1943 Health set featured the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret in a novel triangular format, arranged in tête-bêche pairs. "Imperforate between" pairs exist on both triangular values and are amongst the rarest of all Health varieties.

We were recently shown such an imperf between pair on the 1d green value. This was sent for a RPSNZ Certificate, which stated: "In the opinion of the Expert Committee this item cannot be given a certificate because it is a dangerous forgery, with forged perforations on the outer margins."

We can only speculate that the forger has taken a Bradbury Wilkinson & Co Ltd imperf plate proof pair and doctored it with forged outer perfs.

Caveat emptor

1d Smiling Boy proof REPRODUCTION

In 1981 Campbell Paterson's English branch in Woking, Surrey produced reproductions of a Perkins Bacon 1930 1d Smiling Boy imperf proof, defaced across the top left corner. The process used was offset photo-lithography and the finished product was superbly executed.

To ensure that there was no possibility of them being mistaken for originals, they were not only defaced by the addition of a white line diagonally across top left corner, but also inscribed “REPRODUCTION” indelibly on the back of each one.

We have now had brought to our attention that one (at least) of these items had “REPRODUCTION” missed from the reverse. However the defacing top left line is still present so no one should be under any misapprehension as to what it really is.

NEW DISCOVERY AND OPINION PIECE

by David Smitham

1880 Queen Victoria Long Types 5/- & 9/- with NZ Watermark – Postally Used.

Illustration – courtesy of Mowbray Collectables.

Illustration – courtesy of Andrew Spence

The previously unreported postally used 5/- QVLT stamp with NZ watermark, illustrated above, is clearly dated 1882. The 2012 RPSNZ certificate accompanying the stamp states: “That this is a genuine postally used (in 1882) example of 1880 QV long type fiscal 5/- green, wmk NZ, perf 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ ”.

The previously unreported postally used 9/- QVLT stamp with NZ watermark, also illustrated above, bears part of a Napier duplex cancel and date (? ?) 84 and received a similar RPSNZ certificate stating genuine postal use.

Before the Stamp Amendment Act, 1881 postage stamps were not intended to be used for fiscal purposes and fiscal stamps were not intended for postal purposes. That Act prepared the way for the 2nd Side Faces with their inscription “Postage & Revenue”, i.e. one form of stamp for each denomination, “may be created which may be used either as postal labels or for any other purpose for which stamps are used or permitted to be used whether under ‘The Stamp Act, 1875’ or ‘The Stamp Fee Act, 1880’ ...”.

There was a shortage of 1st Side Face stamps before their 2nd Side Face replacements were ready. Thus, 1d blue Stamp Duty stamps were permitted (in February 1882) for postal use to help counter the shortage problem¹. Queen Victoria Long Type 4d, 6d 8d and 1/- stamps are also known postally used and are listed. QVLT of the 2nd series stamps were initially printed on NZ watermark paper in 1880, followed in 1882 with printings on NZ & Star (6mm) watermark paper.

Campbell Paterson lists 4d, 6d, 8d and 1/- with NZ watermark. Both 6d and 1/- also listed by CP with NZ & Star (6mm) watermark. The original printings of the 4d and 8d values (with NZ watermark) were the only printings made of these values.

Only the 4d, 6d & 8d NZ watermark stamps are priced in CP and SG, whereas in both catalogues all NZ & Star 6mm wmk stamps are. It is apparent from the SG listing that denominations other than 4d, 6d, 8d and 1/- with NZ watermarks have been reported in the past.

In this writer's opinion, it would make more sense for SG to split the 1882 "NZ & Star (6mm wmk)" section into two chronological listings: 4d to 10/- NZ watermark stamps (which were the original issue in 1880), followed by NZ & Star 6mm watermark stamps.
